Private Equity International on December 10, 2025

In a new keynote interview, Proskauer partners Joe Leccese, Justin Breen, and Kelli Moll speak with Private Equity International about the expanding global universe of sports investing and the growing sophistication of institutional capital entering the space. They discuss the forces driving strong valuations, the widening ecosystem of opportunities across teams, leagues, infrastructure and media and the unique regulatory, tax, and governance considerations that set sports apart from other asset classes. The partners also explore how evolving league rules, hybrid investment structures and shifting fan dynamics shape dealmaking, as well as the long-term global trends reshaping the future of this increasingly competitive and complex asset class.
