

A Trademark Licensor Is Not Its Licensee's Keeper

New England IP Blog on October 11, 2014

It appears Oban's case against Nautilus now has no pulse. In a recent opinion in Oban US, LLC v. Nautilus, Inc. and Sports Beat, Inc., Judge Arterton granted Nautilus' motion to dismiss Oban's claims against Nautilus for contributory trademark infringement, vicarious copyright infringement, trade dress infringement, and unfair competition under the Lanham Act and "unspecified" state laws...
