

Same-Sex Spouse Has No Standing to Assert COBRA Notice Claim

ERISA Practice Center Blog on February 24, 2015

A New Jersey federal district court held (in an unpublished opinion) that a former plan participant's same-sex spouse who never enrolled in the benefit plan did not have standing to assert a claim alleging that his spouse's employer failed to provide proper and timely notice of coverage under COBRA... Continue Reading