

Search Of Company Vehicle Not Employee Interview Triggering Weingarten Rights, NLRB Division of Advice

Labor Relations Update Blog on February 27, 2015

The scope of a union-represented employee's right to have a union representative present during an investigatory interview is one of the more interesting areas of labor law. Even though most people who practice labor relations know the basics of the so-called Weingarten rights, the same types of questions continue to arise because there are an infinite variety of scenarios...
