

Plaintiff Secures Sweeping Jury Verdict in Hotly-Contested Patent Fight

New England IP Blog on January 29, 2016

In a long-running patent fight involving two medical device manufacturers, a Massachusetts jury determined last week that the defendant Kaz had infringed two of plaintiff Exergen's patents relating to temporal thermometers, and that the patents are not invalid. The jury also awarded Exergen nearly $15 million in damages...