

Proskauer Releases Survey of In-House Decision Makers on Current Practices and Trends in Managing Labor and Employment Matters

May 18, 2016

Proskauer's Labor and Employment Law Department released its Value Insights: Delivering Value in Labor and Employment Law survey, a resource that illuminates current practices and future trends in managing labor and employment matters. The survey includes input from in-house decision makers on labor and employment matters and provides in-house counsel with tools to both more effectively help their business partners achieve their objectives and to work with outside counsel to provide value in managing labor and employment matters.

Survey respondents span numerous industries, include both private and public companies, and range from small (< 100 employees) to very large (more than 10,000 employees) companies. Seventy-one percent hold senior roles within their organizations, and 23% focus exclusively on labor and employment matters.
