

California Employee Required to Challenge Non-Compete Clause in Indiana

California Employment Law Blog on June 30, 2017

Despite California's prohibition against non-compete agreements, a federal court in the Eastern District of California recently ruled that a California resident may be subject to the non-compete covenant in his employment agreement due to a provision in the agreement identifying Indiana as the parties' choice of forum and that state's law as the parties' choice of law...
