

The Long and Winding Road for Hollywood Employers to Get Back to Business

Daily Journal on July 21, 2020

While March's shelter-in-place orders meant a total production shutdown for the entertainment industry, employers are now allowed to resume production in California. With this reopening comes a myriad of new compliance regulations that entertainment companies are adapting to. This article addresses a number of issues that Hollywood faces as they resume work and what the landscape looks like going forward.
