

Eyes Open to the Past: Federal Circuit Holds Prosecution History Is Claim Construction Evidence

The Patent Playbook on July 3, 2025

The Federal Circuit's decision in Eye Therapies, LLC v. Slayback Pharma, LLC provides further insight into the tools available for patent claim construction. The Federal Circuit had previously held that a patent's specification can evidence that the patentee intended for a term in the patent claims to have a different meaning than what is typical. Now, the Federal Circuit has held that the prosecution history—the exchanges between the U.S. Patent & Trademark Office and the patent applicant during the application process—can do the same.

Read the full post on Proskauer's Minding Your Business blog.

View original.

Related Professionals

---

- Baldassare Vinti
Partner