Healthcare

Band 1

The Firm: This firm continues to attract widespread praise from the healthcare industry and is lauded for its high level of expertise and experience in transactional matters. However, its remit extends to cover advice on regulatory and compliance issues including such as those relating to licensing and fraud and abuse. The group regularly represents clients during investigations and in any subsequent litigation. For example, it successfully defended Beth Israel Medical Center against a claim brought under the New York False Claims Act, which sought over $1 billion in damages based on allegations of Medicaid billing irregularities spanning more than ten years.

Sources Say:"These lawyers really know what they are talking about. Their suggestions are well thought out and always hold up."

Key Individuals: Edward Kornreich is regarded as one of the leading healthcare regulatory lawyers in the city. Clients call him "the number-one person at understanding the craziness of the American healthcare regulations. He is great to raise questions with." Peers agree, observing: "Many people seek his advice when they are faced with a tricky problem." Richard Zall garners a wealth of praise from clients as a "wonderful and creative adviser," and someone "who never makes you feel like you are asking a stupid question; you can bounce anything off him." His practice centers on healthcare transactions.
