Amy Gordon is an associate in the Litigation Department and a member of the Appellate and Mass Torts & Product Liability Groups. Her practice encompasses a range of complex civil and commercial litigation matters across industries, including financial services, consumer products, telecommunications, and construction. Amy has also advised clients on economic sanctions and asset forfeiture related issues.

Amy has experience representing clients at all stages of litigation, including filing initial pleadings, coordinating discovery, taking and defending depositions, briefing dispositive and discovery motions, arguing motions, drafting direct and cross examinations, preparing witnesses for trial, and drafting briefs for appeals to U.S. Courts of Appeals and several state appellate courts.

Amy maintains an active pro bono practice, including representing clients in litigation to improve housing conditions and protect voting rights. In addition, she undertook a five-month secondment while at the Firm, where she worked for the City of New York in the General Litigation Unit. She was selected to participate in Proskauer's Women's Sponsorship Program, an initiative for high-performing lawyers that champions future leaders.

Amy earned her J.D. from the University of Texas School of Law, where she was a Cybersecurity Graduate Fellow and served as Chief Notes Editor for The Review of Litigation. During law school, Amy interned for the Honorable Nicholas G. Garaufis in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York.
