Bruce E. Fader, the former chair of the Litigation Department and a former member of the firm's seven-person Executive Committee, maintains an active trial and litigation practice. He has tried major commercial cases in Alabama, California, Delaware, Illinois, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania, and before the ICC in Paris.

Representing corporate plaintiffs, Bruce has recovered hundreds of millions of dollars, mostly after trial, in matters covering a broad range of substantive areas and industries, including banking, securities, insurance coverage, pharmaceutical, biotech, mechanical engineering, and complex commercial contracts of various types.

Representing defendants, Bruce has litigated extensively in the following substantive areas and industries, among others:

- Patents - Represented both plaintiffs and defendants in patent litigations for more than 20 years
- Securities - Defended numerous '33 and '34 Act class action and derivative suits, representing inside and outside directors, officers, issuers, accountants and law firms, including the successful defense (of inside directors) in a two-month jury trial of a large 10b-5 class action, tender offers (both sides), proxy fights (both sides), and insider trading SEC investigations, and has frequently appeared in the Delaware Chancery Court

- Antitrust - Defended foreign and domestic clients in various federal courts and before the FTC
- International Arbitration - -Handled various types of international arbitrations, principally for French, Japanese and Chinese clients
