Daniel Dorson is an associate in the Labor & Employment Law Department and a member of the Labor-Management Relations Group. Daniel represents unionized and non-unionized employers in all stages of labor-management relations including union organizing campaigns, collective bargaining negotiations, contract administration, grievance arbitrations, work stoppages, and day-to-day labor relations issues. Daniel also represents employers in proceedings before the National Labor Relations Board including representation petitions, unfair labor practice charges, and compliance matters.

Daniel's labor-management relations experience spans a variety of industries including sports, entertainment, cultural institutions, journalism, production/manufacturing, higher education, and various service industries. His work involves bargaining units of all sizes represented by labor organizations such as UAW, SEIU, Teamsters, UFCW, IATSE, AGMA, NewsGuild, and many others.

Daniel also has experience representing employers in federal court and before state and federal administrative agencies. He has defended employers against single plaintiff claims and class and collective actions alleging discrimination, harassment, and wage and hour violations.

While in law school, Daniel interned for the National Football League and the Arizona Coyotes. Prior to beginning his legal career, Daniel worked in football operations and administration for the Arizona Cardinals, Detroit Lions, Miami Dolphins, and Indianapolis Colts.
