Elizabeth (Beth) Shrieves is an associate in the Litigation Department and a member of the Intellectual Property and Patent Law groups. Beth has experience litigating intellectual property matters in numerous federal district courts across the United States as well as before the Federal Circuit, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, and International Trade Commission. Beth's experience covers a wide variety of products and technology involving software and applications, numerous types of medical devices, network security products, electrical hardware, telecommunications, supercapacitors, automotive engines, weapon systems and consumer products.

She has counseled clients throughout all stages of litigation, including both plaintiff and defense work, from pre-suit investigation, initial pleadings, discovery, trial, and through appeal. Beth has also counseled clients through IP transfer, licensing, and enforcement decisions. Beth has drafted and participated in post-grant petitions before the PTAB, including several inter partes review petitions.

Beth graduated from George Mason University School of Law where she earned her J.D., Magna Cum Laude. Prior to earning her law degree, she received a bachelor's degree from Wake Forest University where she also graduated Magna Cum Laude. Beth also previously worked as a paralegal where she gained a deeper understanding of the nuances of commercial litigation.
