Hannah Silverman is an associate in the Litigation Department and a member of the Product Liability, Trial Strategies and White Collar Defense & Investigations Groups. Hannah's practice focuses on a broad range of matters, including product liability defense, white collar defense, internal investigations, and contract disputes. She has represented institutional and individual clients in all phases of civil and criminal litigation, including discovery, trial, and at criminal sentencing. Most recently, Hannah served as a trial team member representing Monsanto in a high-profile product liability suit. After a five-month trial, the California jury returned a complete defense verdict.

Hannah earned her Juris Doctor, cum laude, from Fordham University School of Law. During law school, Hannah served as an articles and notes editor of the Fordham Law Review and as an associate editor of the Dispute Resolution Society. She is the author of "The Role of 'Coordinating Discovery Attorneys' in Multidefendant Federal Criminal Cases," 88 Fordham L. Rev. 1173 (2019), which received the Mary Daly Graduation Prize in Legal Ethics. Hannah holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Emory University.
