Jaclyn is a partner in the Litigation Department and a member of the Antitrust practice. She has significant experience representing clients across industries through all stages of large-scale antitrust litigations and regulatory investigations brought by U.S. and international authorities.

Jaclyn brings a nuanced understanding of complex antitrust matters, along with the regulatory frameworks and business dynamics that influence competition disputes. She advises clients across diverse sectors, including pharmaceuticals, technology, food and beverage, technology and aviation, offering strategic guidance on a wide spectrum of competition-related matters. Jaclyn has successfully defended leading corporations in multidistrict and class action litigation, particularly in cases alleging anticompetitive conduct involving patent settlements and other market exclusion strategies. Her appellate advocacy has led to significant victories that have helped frame antitrust and constitutional law, including on class certification standards.

Jaclyn is a recognized thought leader on timely and developing antitrust issues. She is a frequent host of the ABA Antitrust Law Section's podcast “Our Curious Amalgam”, where she leads discussions with renowned guests on cutting edge issues.

Jaclyn is deeply committed to pro bono work, with a particular emphasis on immigration advocacy. She has successfully represented individuals seeking asylum in the United States, reflecting her dedication to justice and community service.
