Om Alladi is an associate in the Litigation Department of the New York office. Om's practice encompasses a broad range of complex commercial litigation matters, including product liability defense, contract disputes, and insurance recovery actions. He has represented clients in a variety of industries in state and federal courts across the United States.

Om has experience with every stage of litigation, including drafting dispositive motions, taking depositions, preparing witnesses for depositions, and securing favorable outcomes at trial. Om has also been involved in preparing a diverse array of trial memoranda, from cross and direct examinations, to opening and closing statements. Most recently, Om was part of a trial team representing Johnson & Johnson in a high-profile talcum powder case that was resolved on highly favorable terms.

Matters

Recent and notable matters include representation of:

- Johnson & Johnson, a multinational pharmaceutical company, in a three-week jury trial in Oklahoma City state court alleging that exposure to Johnson's Baby Powder causes mesothelioma. Following jury deliberations but before a verdict had been reached, the matter was resolved on highly favorable terms. Om has also been involved in the complex multi-district litigation in New Jersey federal court, encompassing thousands of plaintiffs and cases.

- DXC Technology, a global information technology provider, in a proceeding to vacate the impermissible award of over $80 million in consequential damages to its former client, Kemper.
- Bausch Health Companies Inc. (formerly Valeant Pharmaceuticals International, Inc.), a specialty pharmaceutical company, in a D&O liability coverage action against its insurance carriers.
