Usman Khan is a partner in the Global Finance practice and a member of the Firm's Private Capital and Real Assets industry groups.

Usman is a leading private capital lawyer with a deep focus on the real assets sector, recognised for advising on complex and high-value transactions in asset-intensive sectors. He represents a broad spectrum of sophisticated market participants – including private equity sponsors, debt funds, sovereign wealth funds, alternative capital providers and institutional investors – and brings extensive experience across the full lifecycle of private capital deployment. His practice spans both debt and equity structures, and he has a distinguished track record in structuring, negotiating and executing bespoke financing solutions tailored to clients' commercial needs.

Usman is well known for his real estate finance expertise, where he advises on all aspects of real estate-related debt across asset classes and through a wide range of financing structures. He advises on transactions at the intersection of real estate and infrastructure, including digital infrastructure and energy transition assets.

In addition, Usman regularly advises clients on significant cross-border matters involving the Middle East and other emerging markets, supporting clients on globally integrated investment strategies.

Usman is recognised as a leading lawyer in the market and ranked as a Next Generation Partner by The Legal 500 and named a Rising Star of European Finance by Financial News (2026).

He is highly regarded by clients for his commercial approach and ability to navigate complex transactions, with feedback noting that he is “highly commercial and enjoyable to work with,” “highly responsive and surprisingly relaxed, irrespective of time pressures,” and demonstrates a, “willingness to provide holistic and unencumbered advice to build relationships.” Clients also highlight his, “commercial mindset and true problem-solving mentality with respect to engineering creative solutions to complex situations.”
